" Kanaras added. # Waatti said coming by to say goodbye to the place brought back a lot of memories, her mom's sister-in-law her cousin L.J's mom, Beulah Hurley was a big part of the place until she passed away in 2017, she added # " We were like sisters, " Juanita Hurley, of Rochester said. " I feel sad, but times change. " # Many had stories of celebrations held at the place, and talked about growing up with Mr. B's. # Therese Kopacz, who sat with David Rains, both of Troy, said the pair were just at the place on Thursday and hadn't heard a word about the sale until later catching it on the news. # Kopacz said she started coming to Mr. B's in the late 1970s and still remembers celebrating her daughter's 5th birthday at the place, where she caught her child sticking her finger in the power socket and getting " a zap. " # After learning of the sale, Kopacz said they wanted to come by for lunch at the place one last time -- she went for the spinach and artichoke dip, while Rains finished up a " Slop Burger. " # Kanaras, once a waiter working at a restaurant in Detroit's Greektown, said he remembers that on the happenstance nights he'd get off early, he would call ahead to order a couple of drinks at Mr. B's and they'd be waiting for him. # " I'm very upset, " he said. " Because I made -- and I lost -- a lot of friends in
