

was abandoned, SC lawmakers and agencies have tried to keep SCE&G and parent company SCANA from overcharging power customers for the failed project. Here is a summary of what has happened. # By # Up Next # Since the V.C. Summer nuclear expansion project was abandoned, SC lawmakers and agencies have tried to keep SCE&G and parent company SCANA from overcharging power customers for the failed project. Here is a summary of what has happened. # By # COLUMBIA, SC # A year ago, SCANA chief executive Jimmy Addison stood beside Dominion CEO Tom Farrell as the pair announced their companies were combining. # Today, as Dominion completes its takeover of Cayce-based SCANA, Addison is on the way out. # Dominion announced Addison's retirement -- and his replacement, Dominion senior vice president and chief information officer Rodney Blevins -- in a news release Wednesday. Addison, 58, will stay on and advise Blevins over the next month before retiring Feb. 1 -- one of several executive departures announced Wednesday. # " Jimmy Addison is well-respected throughout the energy and utilities sector, " Farrell said. " I sincerely thank him for his leadership during the challenging times of the past 18 months. Jimmy has had an outstanding career at SCANA, and we wish him well in retirement. " # Addison is eligible for the severance payout even though SCANA shareholders voted to reject such so-called " golden parachutes " in a non-binding vote in July. # " SCANA is contractually obligated to pay certain severance benefits to key executives whose jobs are eliminated in conjunction with a change in control of the company, " SCANA spokeswoman Rhonda O'Banion wrote in an email. " These types of severance plans are commonly used to encourage key executives to remain